

Candelabra

Candelabra takes its name from the majestic redwood trees that form the western edge of the Anderson Valley. A candelabra is a fallen Redwood that sends new shoots upward and continues to grow and preserve its heritage for generations. Our father had the foresight to develop this property in the beautiful and remote Anderson Valley in 1991. Just as the Coastal Redwoods thrive on the fog of the Valley, so too do the Pinot Noir grapes in the vineyard. The next generations of the Brutocao Family have chosen to honor his legacy with this wine.

TASTING NOTES

Aromas of currants, Bing cherry & cola, with Christmas spice greet you in this Anderson Valley Estate Pinot Noir. Upon tasting, a burst of cherry and ripe, red fruit come through in the mid palate along with cinnamon and cloves with hints of cedar. This then takes you to the long lush finish with all that fruit coming back through.
